

ICN Business School

PROFILE

Since 1905, ICN has been the leading Business School in eastern France, in the heart of Europe. The school's identity and growth are based on the links between management, technology, and art in today's economy and the economy of tomorrow. A member of the business school section of the Conférence des Grandes Ecoles and of the Ecricome testing consortium, ICN is also a part of the ARTEM alliance established in 1999 with two other renowned institutions in the region (Mines Nancy and the Ecole Nationale Supérieure d'Art de Nancy, ENSA). ICN is EQUIS and AMBA accredited and is a member of AACSB. The school's distinctive brand is based on the personal development of its students, stimulated through close support from the school, the cultivation of openness to other cultures, and significant practice working in teams and on concrete projects.

Location

ICN Business School has 4 campuses: Nancy, Metz, (France), Nuremberg (Germany) and Cjengdu (China) with offshore Bachelor programs in Algeria and Senegal as well as 4 recruiting offices abroad. The city of Nancy, located 100 kilometers from Germany, Belgium, and Luxembourg, and midway between Paris and Strasbourg, is naturally open to Europe. The centrality of this location is consolidated by the high-speed train line that connects Nancy with Paris in just 90 minutes. Nancy is an important student center that welcomes thousands of international students at University of Lorraine. A culturally and economically dynamic city, Nancy has also been ranked as France's most internationally open city. ICN contributes by attracting more than 900 international students each year.
