UNIVERSITÉ TOULOUSE 1 CAPITOLE

The Université de Toulouse 1 (UT1) Capitole has its roots in a faculty of canonical law established in 1229. Well known for its reputation in law and political science, the university has diversified its research and academic programs since the 1960s, hiring top-quality faculty in economics and management. Today UT1's school of economics and institute of business administration have reputations that extend well beyond France: both are considered among the top European institutions for teaching and research in these disciplines. The university enrolls more than 18,500 students, of which 20% are international students from every continent on the globe.

◆ RESEARCH

The Université de Toulouse 1 Capitole is a cluster for research in law, political science, economics, and management. Many UT1 research teams are affiliated with the area's most prestigious centers for information sciences and mathematics.

- Doctoral department for law and political science
- Midi-Pyrénées doctoral department for economics
- Doctoral department for management

◆ STRENGTHS

Training and research at UT1 is strongly oriented toward professional studies, an orientation that enables students to move smoothly into careers. The university's excellent placement rate is a consequence both of its advanced research (which guarantees top-quality teaching) and of an ongoing commitment to the internationalization of our academic programs and research activities.

◆ LOCATION

The university is concentrated in three sites. The Arsenal and the Anciennes Facultés, a two-minute walk from the Place du Capitole, house most of UT1's lecture halls and classrooms, as well as the main university library. Most laboratories and research libraries are housed at the Manufacture des Tabacs, located between the Garonne River and the Brienne Canal.
